Clear cultural and technical information, an engaging story, and great graphics. I'm only sorry that Bruce Miller didn't get to enjoy the final product - he surely would have been proud.

Great Grandmother, Kaya, a revered Skokomish basket maker, is teaching Josephine, 15, and her brother Ralph, 10, how to make baskets twined with the leaves of the cattail plant. Kaya learned when she was very young, just like the others who lived for thousands of years in the Southern Coast Salish region of Western Washington State. Now she passes the knowledge on, showing Josephine and Ralph how to collect and process the cattails, and even where to dig for the dying materials. But Kaya has more in store for them, as they become entwined in the traditional ways of life.

From the AuthorThis is a story about two contemporary Native American children, Josephine and Ralph, who live on the Skokomish Reservation where the Skoskomish River flows into Hood Canal, Washington. They are learning to create the highly decorated baskets of this region.
